Galaxy4Gamers Welcomes Virgin Resurgence

Leading online gaming community reacts to news that Richard Branson is entering industry

LOS ANGELES, California (June 7, 2010) – Galaxy4Gamers, a leading video game tournament website, is excited to hear Sir Richard Branson and Virgin have acquired World Gaming to reenter the online gaming industry.

Galaxy4Gamers's CEO, Chris Doe, thinks Virgin's move into the niche market of online skill-based video game tournament is an extremely positive sign for the industry and professional gaming in general. "Gaming for real cash is still a relatively new concept here in the US, especially online where cheating remains a big deterrent. Richard Branson's entrance into the industry will provide professional video gamers some long overdue attention and establish more credibility and standards to the sport."

Regarding competing against the newly formed Virgin Gaming, Doe continues "Obviously competing against a conglomerate with endless resources can be daunting, but we are up to the challenge and are confident in our product and direction. In the past year, we were able to match all the core functionality of the leading competitors, as well as release industry first products, such as Beat-A-Pro™ challenges, in-person and online LAN promoter platforms and most importantly industry leading anti-cheating streaming measures."

Finally, Doe concludes by saying "The industry needs a media magnet like Branson to help shape its future, I look forward to seeing what the Virgin team comes up with."
